

CONTENTS

List of Tables and Figures	xiii
Acknowledgements	xv
Chapter I
Introduction	1
1.1 The problem and the argument	2
1.2 Research methods and fieldwork activities	7
1.2.1 Access	12
1.2.2 Building trust	13
1.2.3 Why do drug traffickers talk about their business?: roles and expectations	14
1.2.4 Fieldwork limitations, dangerous mistakes and ethical boundaries	15
1.3 Thinking on traquetos : ethnicity, entrepreneurship and drug dealing	17
1.3.1 Bad guys and culture: anthropologists on drug dealers	17
1.3.2 Criminologists and the arranged marriage between ethnicity and organised crime	19
1.3.3 Managers and network analysts: the art of fighting fluidity	21
1.3.4 The economic rationale: illegal entrepreneurs, businesses and markets	22
1.3.5 Sociology of work: labour relations in the cocaine business	25
Chapter II
The Domain of Cocaine
Emergence, Impact and Organisation of Drug Entrepreneurs in Colombia	27
Introduction	27
2.1 Cocaine in Colombia	29
2.1.1 Getting into business: from the ' bonanza marimbera ' to the Miami cocaine wars	29
Rise and fall of Colombian marihuana	29
Cuba and Panama: the first contacts	31
Flourishing demand: from the 'mule' to the plane	32
The Miami wars	33
2.1.2 Why (in) Colombia?	35
Political factors	36
Geographical factors	37
Economic factors	37
2.2 The numbers of cocaine	39
2.2.1 From coca to the 'kitchen'	39
Coca in Colombia	40
The kitchen	41
Chemical precursor products	42
2.2.2 How much is exported?	43
2.2.3 Prices and costs	46

	The costs of doing business	47
2.2.4	Colombian cocaine income: a 'narco-economy'?	48
2.3	Cocaine entrepreneurs in Colombia: the business social structure	49
2.3.1	Social origins of illegal entrepreneurs	49
2.3.2	The many traditions of drug organisations: the cocaine centres	51
	The Atlantic Coast focus	51
	The Antioquian focus	52
	The Central focus	53
	The East focus	53
	The Valluno focus	54
	The Northern Cauca Valley focus	54
2.3.3	Flexible co-operation: entrepreneurs without 'cartel'	56
	Types of enterprises	56
	On patronos, deputies and labourers	58
	Colombian cartels?	59
	Between co-operation and savage competition	61
2.4	The social impact of cocaine entrepreneurs	63
2.4.1	Social legitimisation: strategies and encapsulation	63
2.4.2	Colombian mafia?	64
2.4.3	Social and political impact	67
	Cocaine entrepreneurs and the state	67
	Cocaine entrepreneurs, guerrilla and paramilitary groups	68
	Cocaine entrepreneurs and social violence	70

Chapter III

White Shipments, Sour Transactions

The Dutch Cocaine Market in European Perspective

		73
3.1	The European market	73
3.1.1	Old European cocaine markets	73
	Cocaine in Europe until 1930	73
	Java and the Nederlandsche Cocainefabriek	74
	From panacea to evil vice	75
	Cocaine in Europe 1930-1970	76
	Cocaine renaissance	77
3.1.2	Cocaine demand	79
	Trends	79
	Prices	82
	Purity	84
3.1.3	Cocaine supply	85
	Who controls supply in Europe?	86
	Cocaine and colonialism	89
3.1.4	Reading European seizures	91
3.1.5	Lines across Europe: the cartography of cocaine trafficking	96
	Spain and the Atlantic Coast	97

Italy	97
Eastern Europe and the Baltic	97
The Balkan route	98
Other lines	99
Bi-directional lines and transshipment areas	100
3.2 Why through the Netherlands? Some views from traquetos	101
3.2.1 Economic activity and communication infrastructure	101
The single market	105
3.2.2 The international meeting point	105
3.2.3 The repression factor	107
3.2.4 The obstacles	111
Chapter IV
With a Cross on the Forehead
Colombian Migrants in the Netherlands	113
4.1 Colombians in the polders	113
4.1.1 Migration patterns and demographic profile	113
4.1.2 Class background and social capital	117
4.1.3 Welcomed?	119
4.2. Survival strategies: 'A Colombian doesn't get stuck'	120
4.2.1 Colombian jobs and incomes	120
Informal labour	120
Formal employment	122
Social security and partner income	123
Students	123
Ethnic entrepreneurship: the lack of own infrastructure	123
4.2.2 Facing obstacles	124
Colombia as a trauma	124
Legal status and material deprivation	125
Othering the Dutch: self-identity and 'cultural' complaints	126
Bored women: "the old man is watching TV"	127
Second generation: salseros or ravers?	128
Paranoid distrust and stigmas: with a cross on the forehead	129
4.2.3 Dispersion and the limits of ethnic solidarity	130
Chapter V
Crossing and Crowning
Colombian Cocaine Smugglers and Importers in the Netherlands	133
Introduction	133
The numbers game	133
Four trade levels: heterogeneity and articulation	136
5.1 Smuggling cocaine	138
5.1.1 The options	138
5.1.2 The players	143

	The fall of the independent smuggler	143
	Colombian smugglers in the Netherlands	144
	Mulas	145
	Boleros	149
	Niñeras	153
	Tripulantes	154
5.1.3	The chances to crown: assessing risks	155
5.2	Importing cocaine	156
5.2.1	The Colombian share in cocaine import	156
5.2.2	From business envoys to local adventurers: social hierarchies amongst traquetos	159
	Envoys	159
	Line owners	160
	Mixed couples	162
	Adventurers	163
5.2.3	Getting (un)organised	164
	Mobile phones and call centres	164
	Commercial bridgeheads: front stores vs. bona fide firms	165
	White, green and brown	168
	The 'animals' are coming	169
5.2.4	Further tasks around the importer	170
	Internal transport	170
	Security tasks	171
	Logistic tasks	172

Chapter VI

Sly Traquetos, Safe Houses and Salsa Dealers

	Colombian Cocaine Wholesalers and Retailers in the Netherlands	175
6.1	Wholesale cocaine	175
6.1.1	Locality and the social organisation of cocaine distribution	175
6.1.2	Back in the States	177
6.1.3	The competitive disadvantage of Colombian distributors in the Netherlands	183
	The international palette: dealing in a non-Colombian environment	184
6.1.4	Local Colombian traquetos	190
	Conspicuous traders	191
	Discreet professionals	193
	Flexible amateurs	195
	Hanging around distributors: correitos and ASOTRAPO members	196
	Second generation traquetos	199
	Operational problems and daily routines: the 'apartacho'	199
	Favoured by other traquetos	200
6.2	Retailing cocaine	201
6.2.1	Away from the streets	201

6.2.2	How far from traquetos ?	202
6.2.3	Bars and coffee-shops	203
6.2.4	The paquete : gram distribution inside the Latino salsa circuit	203
6.2.5	Crack	205
6.3	Closing remarks	205

Chapter VII

Bad Reputations

Cocaine, Prostitution and Illegal Immigrants 207

7.1	Colombian prostitutes and cocaine	207
7.1.1	The Colombian prostitution circuit	207
	Traffic in women	210
	Vulnerability	212
7.1.2	Colombians around the women	214
	Clients	215
	Service and good providers	216
7.1.3	'We are just friends': settings for social interaction	218
	Exchange	220
7.1.4	Prostitutes & cocaine	222
	Weak business linkages	224
7.2	Illegal immigrants and cocaine	226
7.2.1	Colombian illegal careers	227
7.2.2	Selectivity and specialisation	229
7.2.3	Offers that can be refused	232
7.2.4	Mutual rejection	234

Chapter VIII

Flexible Affairs

Labour and Business Relations amongst Colombian Dealers 237

	Introduction	237
8.1	Branches, criminal networks and flexible entrepreneurs	238
8.2	Sand through the fingers	240
8.2.1	Riverito's four operations	240
	Encaletador	241
	Unloading in Zeebrugge	242
	From unloader to importer to wholesaler	242
8.2.2	Miguel's many bosses	245
8.2.3	Joel's loneliness	246
8.3	Working with/for a traqueto	248
8.3.1	Business types	248
	Individual enterprises	248
	Partnerships	249
	Joint ventures	250
	Percentage commission	250